BISHOP MAES

To Attend the Dedication of the New St. James Catholic Church At Brooksville Next Sunday.

Right Rev. Bishop C. P. Maes and his secretary, Father James Corey, will attend the dedicatory services at St. James' church in Brooksville, Ky., Sunday, December 6. These services will begin at 10 a. m. The church is in charge of the Rev. Father T. J. Coleman. Rev. Father Coleman was for many years the assistant to the late Father Smith of St. Patrick's church in Covington.

The new structure occupies the site of the old frame church that has served as the house of worship for many citizens of Brooksville since 1866. The new church is a handsome brick building. It is expected that many Catholics from Covington will leave on the 7 o'clock C. & O. train Sunday morning to participate in the dedicatory services.

THIS WEEK'S WOMAN FORWARD MOVEMENT PROGRAM.

Wednesday morning at the high school building, Miss Mary Wilson will deliver an address on the "Purpose of Campaign—Literacy in the Home." 9:30 a. m., Wednesday—Distribution of literature by ladies in automobiles. 7:30—West Third Baptist church. Miss Maxon will speak to the colored people on "Literacy in the Home."

Thursday, High School Building—Harry C. Curran—"What It Means to Kentucky to Have Illiteracy Stamped From Her Borders."

Friday, 3 p. m.—Forest Avenue Building—Luther C. Reynolds will address the Parent-Teachers' Association on "What It Means to Kentucky to Have Illiteracy Stamped From Her Borders."

EX-CONVICTS

Engaged In a Shooting and Cutting Scrape In Smoky Hollow—One Lands In Jail.

There was a lively moving picture mixup yesterday afternoon at the maison de loi of Sis Cash, in "Smoky Hollow," between Bob Warner and Charley Martin, the latter being ex-convictary birds, and all negroes. The shooting was without result, as the men were struggling for possession of a gun, which was discharged and led to the report that a regiment had been killed.

Martin then grabbed a pocket knife and slashed Warner in the breast and made his escape, later being captured in "Glycerine Hollow" by Sheriff Clarke and Policeman Bloomhuff, who landed him in jail. Warner is able to be about. He has just been released from the penitentiary for robbery. Martin served several years for shooting his father. His home is at Minerva.

ALL READY FOR CHRISTIAN CHURCH BAZAAR.

The managers of the Christian Church Bazaar, which will be held December 4th and 5th, wish to state that although the bazaar will be open for inspection of articles for sale at 10 o'clock Friday morning, there will be this is that the public has been known no sales until 10:30. The reason for to complain that those "on the inside" as it were, have opportunity to make purchases sometimes prior to the arrival of the crowd. To obviate this, the managers have adopted this rule, which they hope will insure complete satisfaction.

UNJUST

And Slanderous Are Charges Against Trustees of Hayswood Hospital Declares J. Foster Barbour

Records Show That Everything Concerning Purchase and Management of Hospital Is Perfectly Square

Editor of The Public Ledger:

The article of Mr. A. Clooney in the Daily Independent of yesterday on Wilson Hospital is directed particularly at me.

His first statement is that the property belonged to my father-in-law, the late Dr. Hays, and the price paid was considered high at the time, being about $6,000.

I will say the property was sold at public sale, it was offered in parcels and as a whole. Mrs. Wilson's bid was a few dollars more than the other bids. The executors of the estate of Mrs. Wilson were allowed the usual fees for winding up her estate. As far as I am personally concerned, I have given in dollars and cents to the hospital more money than I received for my portion of the commissions in winding up her estate.

The charge that the money was placed in bank or government bonds to be used at some future time when the urgency for charity is greater than now is not true. The bulk of Mrs. Wilson's personal estate was in government bonds when we received it. Since then it has always been kept invested at not less than 5 per cent. At this time every dollar of the fund is in 6 per cent mortgage paper—which statement can be verified by referring to the records of the Mason County Court.

The name has not been changed since Mrs. Wilson's death. The name was not to honor any family. Mrs. Wilson requested that her name should not be used. It was given by Dr. Pickett and he gave it this name because it was the name of the site, which fact is recognized by Mrs. Wilson in her will, WRITTEN BY HERSELF, in twice referring to it under that name. We have another instance of a noble benefaction in this community where the donor refused to allow his name to be used—Mr. James Wormald—who gave the public library to the city and county.

J. F. BARBOUR.

Editor of The Public Ledger:

I wish to add to the above statement, that the trustees of Hayswood Hospital, who acted as executors of Mrs. Wilson, have contributed in excess of double the amount of money to the hospital that the same gentlemen received as statutory fees as executors, in selling the estate of Mrs. Mae V. Wilson.

SO THAT INSTEAD OF DERIVING PROFIT FROM THE INSTITUTION, AS HAS BEEN SLANDEROUSLY CHARGED, the trustees have contributed their means and devoted their best efforts to the interests of the hospital, receiving in return a great deal of unkind and unjust criticism.

J. F. BARBOUR.

Zeppelins Are Preparing To Destroy British Fleet (?)

Rotterdam, December 1.—I am informed that Zeppelins are now practicing how to sink the allies' fleet. My informant, who has returned from Bavaria, watched the maneuvers of the Zeppelins over the military area. They ascended to a height considered sufficient to safeguard them against gun fire and dropped unloaded bombs.

London, December 1.—The arrival of Emperor William in Poland marked a turn in the tide of battle. The Russians, it is declared, had nearly surrounded that part of the German army near Lodz, and it narrowly missed annihilation. The emperor took hold of the situation. Fighting with indescribable fury, the Germans broke the encircling cordon of Russians. Reinforcements arrived in the nick of time. The latest news concerning the situation indicated that the Germans, whose position has been described as a desperate one, were undertaking vigorous offensive movements.

UNCLE SAM IS PEACEFUL, BUT DON'T GET HIM STARTED.

The news from Washington that the war department is forming a reserve army of 150,000 in co-operation with military schools and organizations advocating the building up of a national defense machine is particularly gratifying at this time. While the European war has not been altogether responsible for this, since the field instruction camps for college and high school students last summer preceded the first shot on the continent, nevertheless the great war has contributed toward interesting the public much more actively in this subject, and there will undoubtedly be a general demand that Congress support Secretary Garrison and the other army heads in this highly important project.

Such an army of 150,000 men, to be composed chiefly of college, high and military school students, would probably not include the potential reserve of the veterans from the Spanish and Philippine wars and of the regular army service. In any event, by adding to the 100,000 men of our regular army (the actual enrollment now stands at 96,000) the total of close to 125,000 of the organized state militia, plus the 150,000 of the contemplated reserve corps, we should have at least a semi-trained force ready for immediate call of 375,000 men, or more than nine army corps.

Admittedly every militiaman or reserve could not respond to an instant summons. A good percentage of older men and married men in the state guards would not be available for a campaign. But on the other hand the personnel of the state guards changes approximately every three years; that is to say, the 16,000 enlistments in New York state represent some 40,000 men who have received militia training within a decade. Therefore, the gaps in the ranks could be more than filled with men of equal training. On this basis the 125,000 militiamen in the United States represent a possible 400,000 of those who have been in that service, inadequate as it may be, within ten years, or at the least sufficient to raise the entire potential first line and reserve forces to twelve army corps, or half a million men, before one absolutely raw recruit need be accepted.—New York Evening Sun.

A HALF CENTURY OF NOBLE WORK.

The Red Cross, a great international agency of mercy, has now turned its fiftieth anniversary and by a singular coincidence finds itself confronted by its greatest opportunity for usefulness.

There is an almost ironical significance in the fact that half a century after the convention in Geneva, at which steps were taken to give the Red Cross a definite status, there has developed the greatest war of all history, with its terrible accompaniment of misery and death.

The Red Cross is one of the greatest of all human institutions. It is international in scope and universal in its functions. In many wars, and during many floods, famines and epidemics it has stood between many peoples and death. Today it has before it a greater work than the sum total of all its undertakings in past years. It can not properly do its work without sufficient funds.—Times-Star.

AS A REGULATOR.

As a financial regulator the Federal Reserve Board has already begun to justify itself.—New York Sun.

IT MIGHT BE WORSE.

If you think you are cold, remember the soldiers on the open field in Belgium.—Cedar Rapids Gazette.

A GREAT FORCE PERVERTED.

Germany appears to have met the shock of the present war with rather less financial disturbance than the other belligerents. No general moratorium was declared there, though there is what amounts to a limited one. From the meager accounts at hand the government seems to have taken fewer extraordinary measures to support trade than England did. More than a billion dollars was promptly subscribed to the first war loan. With pretty much the whole able-bodied male population under arms; with two huge armies in the field, facing the most formidable alliance of a century at least; and with all export business cut off—the limited extent of business demoralization appears remarkable. This, of course, is the result of perfect organization and thorough preparation.

Germany is certainly one of the most remarkable political and economic phenomena in history. Occupying a territory smaller than Texas, with rather poor natural resources, poverty-stricken less than a hundred years ago, and with ten centuries of political disorganization, its swift rise to the rich, united, powerful empire of today makes the progress of the United States—with an oppulent continent at its disposal—look commonplace. There was never before, on so large a scale, such an example of thorough organization of all means to definite, common ends.

Now this fine organization, which accomplished really wonderful things in constructive work during forty years, has all gone wrong—laying hold of every resource of the country and devoting it to purposes of destruction. Every example of German efficiency in the field is an indictment of the war—an example of a great force perverted.—Leslie's.

ASK THE WORKERS AND THE MERCHANTS.

The Amityville Record says the Advance is way off in attributing the business depression to the Democratic near free-trade tariff bill. Well, possibly we are wrong. We don't claim to have that psychic information the Record seems to have upon all subjects under the sun, but we know one thing, that you can't make the mill workers and merchants in this town believe that the Democratic administration is a good thing for them.

The two big mills here have laid off scores of employees and have cut down the time of others, and they did it before the war began. A year ago they were running full blast.

Ask the workers about work and wages and the cost of living. Ask the merchants if times are better and collections good. No need really, to discuss the tariff at all.—Patchogue (N. Y.) Advance.

Some Battle.

"Shells to the right of them,
Shells to the left of them,
Scattered and spluttered."

Everywhere shells were bursting.
The air was full of them; they fell like snowflakes.
Overhead (fitting accompaniment) thunder roared and rattled, now loud, now not so loud.
Still the shells cracked and flew to fragments; there must have been millions of them.
The bodies of men hurtled harrowing through the air, launched into space, while the shells dropped ceaselessly.
Horses, many of them riderless, rushed hither and thither and back higher, bounding, cavorting, neighing, yeaing.
It was a scene seen seldom.
And still endlessly, remorselessly, the shells burst and scattered their fragments.
Occasionally the thunder would roll deafeningly.
And, as if in answer down below, a wild roar would shake the tent.
For the circus was on, and already tens of thousands of peanut shells littered the sawdust underneath the seats.—Louisville Times.

I had dull headaches and dizzy spells and often if I had not caught hold of something for support, I would have fallen. I was in that condition for several years, up one week and in bed the next. I finally began to notice symptoms of dropsy and in a short time I was suffering from that trouble. My feet began to swell and my hands were at times the same way. THE RURAL CHURCH

THE FARMERS THE CUSTODIANS OF THE NATION'S MORALITY.

Co-operation of Church, School and Press Essential to Community Building.

By Peter Radford
Lecturer National Farmers' Union.

The church, the press and the school form a triple alliance of progress that guides the destiny of every community, state and nation. Without them civilization would wither and die and through them life may attain its greatest blessing, power and knowledge. The farmers of this nation are greatly indebted to this social triumvirate for their uplifting influence, and on behalf of the American plowmen I want to thank those engaged in these high callings for their able and efficient service, and I shall offer to the press a series of articles on co-operation between these important influences and the farmers in the hope of increasing the efficiency of all by mutual understanding and organized effort. We will take up, first, the rural church.

The Farmers Are Great Church Builders.

The American farmer is the greatest church builder the world has ever known. He is the custodian of the nation's morality; upon his shoulders rests the "ark of the covenant" and he is more responsive to religious influences than any other class of citizenship.

The farmers of this nation have built 120,000 churches at a cost of $750,000,000, and the annual contribution of the nation toward all church institutions approximates $200,000,000 per annum. The farmers of the United States build 22 churches per day. There are 20,000,000 rural church communicants on the farm, and 54 per cent of the total membership of all churches reside in the country.

The farm is the power-house of all progress and the birthplace of all that is noble. The Garden of Eden was in the country and the man who would get close to God must first get close to nature.

The Functions of a Rural Church. If the rural churches today are going to render a service which this age demands, there must be co-operation between the religious, social and economic life of the community.

The church to attain its fullest measure of success must enrich the lives of the people in the community it serves; it must build character; develop thought and increase the efficiency of human life. It must serve the social, business and intellectual, as well as the spiritual and moral side of life. If religion does not make a man more capable, more useful and more just, what good is it? We want a practical religion, one we can live by and farm by, as well as die by.

Fewer and Better Churches.

Blessed is that rural community which has but one place of worship. While competition is the life of trade, it is death to the rural church and moral starvation to the community. Petty sectarianism is a scourge that blights the life, and the church prejudice saps the vitality of many communities. An over-churching community is a crime against religion, a serious handicap to society and a useless tax upon agriculture.

While denominations are essential and church pride commendable, the high teaching of universal Christianity must prevail if the rural church is to fulfill its mission to agriculture.

We frequently have three or four churches in a community which is not able to adequately support one. Small congregations attend services once a month and all fall to perform the religious functions of the community. The division of religious forces and the breaking into fragments of moral efforts is oftentimes little less than a calamity and defeats the very purpose they seek to promote.

The evils of too many churches can be minimized by co-operation. The social and economic life of a rural community are respective units and cannot be successfully divided by denominational lines, and the churches can only occupy this important field by co-operation and co-ordination.

The efficient country church will definitely serve its community by leading in all worthy efforts at community building, in uniting the people in all co-operative endeavors for the general welfare of the community and in arousing a real love for country life and loyalty to the country home and these results can only be successfully accomplished by the united effort of the press, the school, the church and organized farmers.

TEN REASONS.

Below we give ten reasons why you should shop early:

First—There is more from which to make selections.
Second—You get the benefit of full stocks, great variety, unwearied salespeople.

Third—You have better weather.
Fourth—You can wrap your gifts at spare moments.

Fifth—You will avoid the crowd and rush of Christmas times.
Sixth—It is selfish to wait until the last minute.

Seventh—You need to be getting the home more bright and cheerful.
Eighth—It helps the clerks and deliverymen.

Ninth—You will be rested by Christmas, therefore more able to make the loved ones happy.

Tenth—Because there is no reason for not shopping early.

A shark's teeth are movable at will, and become erect at the moment the animal is seizing its prey.

WHAT THREE CENTS DID.

A little boy, about six years old, rushed into a store and asked if they kept those stamps that had the picture of Santa Claus on. The clerk said: "Yes, my boy, we do; how many would you like to have?" The little boy looked earnestly into the clerk's face and asked, "How much are they?" The clerk answered that they were only one cent apiece. The child looked joyfully around and said, "I heard my mother talking about how the money was to help the poor sick people that had consumption. I've only got three cents, but I wanted to help them by buying stamps."

He received his three Red Cross seals and left the store, proud to think he had, perhaps, helped some boy's father who had that terrible disease.

Everything that transpires happens for the best. A long siege of tough luck makes a man more considerate of others.

CHICAGO'S FATAL MAGNET.

The multiplicity of suicides who have hurled themselves down the vast air shaft of the Chicago Chamber of Commerce building has excited the attention of psychologists. This yawning space, encompassed by a low balustrade, has proved a veritable magnet for those who elect to lay down the burden of life. Indeed, the number has increased to such proportions that life nets have been stretched across the chasm from several floors of the building, forming what was intended to be a measure of protection against would-be suicides. Even this has failed of its purpose. Only a few days ago a man leaped from the fourteenth floor into a net at the eighth floor, crashed through and became enmeshed in the broken strands of a second net at the third floor, where his corpse hung until it could be taken down by firemen.

There are two general classes of suicides; one represented by the person who is seized with a sudden impulse in the face of inviting opportunity, and the other by the person who makes up his or her mind with great deliberation and follows a carefully worked out plan.

In each case the element of psychology figures to a great extent. The suicides want to be certain that their plan will not fail. When they have arrived at the point where their minds are made up to take the extreme step they want to know beyond the peradventure of a doubt that there will be no returning. This obsession accounts for plunges from great heights, the sending of a bullet through the brain, the drinking of corrosive poisons, the victims of the suicidal mania, if much it may be called, dread nothing so much as a possible return to life.

The sinister attraction of the air shaft of the Chicago Chamber of Commerce building furnishes emphatic proof of the overmastering desire on the part of the suicide to make his act absolute. There is the warrant of finality in a leap from a great elevation, in the rending of brain tissue with a bullet, in the action of a deadly poison. Morphine is less sought by the suicide than carbolic acid for the reason that the latter may be broken and the stricken one again be brought face to face with life.—Louisville Times.

WHAT HAPPENED TO MANCHESTER

Result of Free-Trade Attempt to Reduce American Citizens to European Pay Rates.

(Bangor (Me.) News.)

To one riding down from the White Mountains by train, the great Amoskeag Corporation, of Manchester, N. H., looks like a big city, isolated to itself, with its big brick buildings alight and canals gleaming by the electric lights of evening.

It is a gigantic and an honorable corporation, one which has given profitable employment, the year around, to more than 15,000 loyal hands. The writer rode through Manchester years and years ago, and wondered how much like a fairy tale it was that a high protective tariff had developed an otherwise unimportant New England city. There was land stretched out before one's mind's eye like diamonds run on strings. Manchester is now one of the chief cities of New Hampshire—the largest city in New England north of Boston; but without capital to build the factories, and without a high protective tariff to encourage capital, fine and stately Manchester might have been no more than one in a thousand other New England cities.

Since the enactment of the Underwood bill into a cruel law Manchester has been striving to support her population by running her immense cotton factories for five days a week, outwardly claiming dull business, though the owners of the factories do not desire stock made under free-trade laws to accumulate ahead of the greatly depressed work hands. Every New England manufacturing city and town has its own story of an attempt to reduce American citizens to European pay rates too late.

Even the hoardings in the thrifty New England savings banks have decreased. Continuous hard times have produced a feeling akin to lethargy in Manchester.

SUBMARINES AND BATTLESHIPS.

(Washington Post.)

Upon the evidence presented by the European war, it would be worse than folly to abandon the construction of dreadnoughts and rely solely upon a great fleet of submarines. It may prove, as Rear Admiral Sigbee suggests, that the British superdreadnought Audacious was destroyed by a German submarine, but even though this were known definitely to be a fact, the case against the larger type of battleships would still be standing upon thin legs.

As an auxiliary service, however, the submarines have demonstrated their effectiveness. The plain lesson of the European naval engagements is that the United States can not afford to neglect the upbuilding of a large fleet of submarines. Few nations of the world have so large a coast line to protect, and few can offer such prizes in the form of large cities, to a foreign foe.

For twelve years the general board of the navy has recommended an ultimate battleship strength of forty-eight capital ships, to be secured by the year 1925 at the latest. One great battleship for each state in the union. That is what the program of the navy board means, and safety lies in the perfection of the program at the earliest possible moment.

'I WONDER WHERE SHE LEARNED?'

No other eyes that e'er met mine
Have had that deep yet simple lure—
Eyes maddening as age-old wine
And yet so clear and pure.

No other lips I e'er did press
Were moistened so with honey dew,
Or parted thus in a caress
As mine sank softly through.

No other breast e'er pillowed me
With such a throbbing, rhythmic swell,
As if, within, a restless sea
Of yearning rose and fell.

No other arms about me thrown
So heavy on my shoulders bore,
As though a life that stood alone
Could stand alone no more.

No other heart I ever met
So evidently for me burned,
With all my soul I love her, yet—
I wonder where she learned.

THE BELGIAN SOLDIER.

From the very beginning of the war we have been reading about the Belgian army. It has an uncanny way of always bobbing up. One day it has been completely crushed by a German army 1,000,000 strong, and the next day the German hordes are absolutely annihilated by it. This little army usually seems to be in the front ranks of the fighters, and usually is on the front pages of the newspapers. What sort of men is it composed of? What sort of chap is the Belgian soldier? According to the correspondent of the London Times, who has watched him on the march, in cabarets and camps, fighting from behind dale kinds of cover or none, wounded or down from sheer physical exhaustion, he is, "for all his manhood, very much of a child. A chatter-box and full of laughter, and never as when he has the sternest work on hand." There is ever a certain air of gaiety about him, in spite of his invariably being tired, unshaven and muddy from head to foot. All in all, he is essentially a very likable specimen of the human race.—Baltimore Sun.

EUROPEAN WAR SHATTERS KING COTTON'S THRONE

FLEECE STAPLE MUST PAY RANSOM INTO THE COFFERS OF WAR.

Nation Rings With Cries of Stricken Industry.

By Peter Radford

Lecturer National Farmers' Union.

King Cotton has suffered more from the European war than any other agricultural product on the American continent. The shells of the belligerents have burst over his throne, frightening his subjects and shattering his markets, and, panic-stricken, the nation cries out "God save the king!"

People from every walk of life have contributed their mite toward rescue work. Society has danced before the king; mllady has decreed that the family wardrobe shall contain only cotton goods; the press has pleaded with the public to "buy a bale"; bankers have been formulating holding plans; congress and legislative bodies have deliberated over relief measures; statesmen and writers have grown eloquent expounding the inalienable rights of "His Majesty" and presenting schemes for preserving the financial integrity of the stricken staple, but the sword of Europe has proved mightier than the pen of America in fixing value upon this product of the sunny south. Prices have been bayoneted, values reduced and markets decimated by the battling hosts of the eastern hemisphere until the American farmer has suffered a war loss of $400,000,000, and a bale of cotton brave enough to enter a European port must pay a ransom of half its value or go to prison until the war is over.

Hope of the Future Lies in Co-operation.

The Farmers' Union, through the columns of the press, wants to thank the American people for the friendship, sympathy and assistance given the cotton farmers in the hour of distress and to direct attention to co-operative methods necessary to permanently assist the marketing of all farm products.

The present emergency presents as grave a situation as ever confronted the American farmer and from the viewpoint of the producer, would seem to justify extraordinary relief measures, even to the point of bending the constitution and straining business rules in order to lift a portion of the burden off the backs of the farmer, for unless something is done to check the invasion of the war forces upon the cotton fields, the pathway of the European pestilence on this continent will be strewn with mortgaged homes and famine and poverty will stalk over the southland, filling the highways of industry with refugees and the bankruptcy court with prisoners.

All calamities teach us lessons and the present crisis serves to illuminate the frailties of our marketing methods and the weakness of our credit system, and out of the financial anguish and travail of the cotton farmer will come a volume of discussion and a mass of suggestions and finally a solution of this, the biggest problem in the economic life of America, if, indeed, we have not already laid the foundation for at least temporary relief.

More Pharaohs Needed in Agriculture. Farm products have no credit and perhaps can never have on a permanent and satisfactory basis unless we build warehouses, cold storage plants, elevators, etc., for without storage and credit facilities, the south is compelled to dump its crop on the market at harvest time. The Farmers' Union in the cotton producing states have for the past ten years persistently advocated the construction of storage facilities. We have built during this period 2,000 warehouses with a capacity of approximately 4,000,000 bales and looking backward the results would seem encouraging, but looking forward, we are able to house less than one-third of the crop and warehouses without a credit system lose 90 per cent of their usefulness.

The problem is a gigantic one—too great for the farmer to solve unaided. He must have the assistance of the banker, the merchant and the government. In production we have reached the high water mark of perfection in the world's history, but our marketing methods are most primitive. In the dawn of history we find agriculture plowing with a forked stick but with a system of warehouses under government supervision that made the Egyptians the marvel of civilization for who has not admired the vision of Joseph and applauded the wisdom of Pharaoh for storing the surplus until demanded by the consumer, but in this age we have too many Josephs who dream and not enough Pharaohs who build.

LITTLE GIRL HAD CHRONIC COUGH

Left from Whooping Cough—Was Terribly Runtown and Weak—Mother Tells How She Was Cured by Vinol.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"My little girl aged thirteen years had the whooping cough which settled into a chronic cough, with a run-down system and lung trouble. She had to stay at home from school while being treated by the doctor, and nothing seemed to help her. I saw Vinol advertised and decided to try it. I soon noticed an improvement, and after giving her four bottles her cough is gone, her strength has returned and she has a good appetite. We think there is nothing like Vinol."—Mrs. M. W. Hurre, Philadelphia, Pa.

What Vinol did for this little girl it will do for others, for it is the healing, curative, tissue building influence of the medicinal elements of the extract of cod's livers aided by the blood making, strengthening properties of tonic iron which makes Vinol so successful in such cases, and children like to take Vinol because it is pleasant, and it is much better for them than "cough medicines" which have no strengthening power, while Vinol builds up the body and throws off the cough.

Remember, if Vinol fails to benefit, we return your money.

MISS BURKE TO RED HEADS.

Billie Burke, who besides appearing on the stage has made herself conspicuous by signing beauty articles, is announced as the author of a message to red-haired women as follows:

"Any woman who has red hair ought to rejoice in it—if for no other reason, because it is economical.

"The woman with red hair dresses well on a smaller income than any other woman. She has fewer temptations to extravagance than either the brunette or the blonde. The girl whose hair is red is limited in her range of colors. She needs fewer gowns and especially fewer hats, wraps and accessories. Her red hair itself is the one brilliant touch of color she needs, and her costumes may and ought to be simply neutral frames for that glowing spot of color."

HOW TO SUCCEED

During the last few years, conditions in all lines of business, even professional life, have changed so completely that every man is waking up to the fact that in order to win success he must specialize and learn to do some one thing and do it well.

So it is with any article that is sold to the people. It must have genuine merit or no amount of advertising will maintain the demand for the article.

For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy. From the very beginning the proprietors had so much confidence in it that they invited everyone to test it.

It is a physician's prescription. They have on file thousands of unsolicited letters received from former sufferers who claim they are now enjoying good health as a result of its use.

However, if you wish first to try a sample bottle, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., enclose ten cents and mention this paper. They will promptly forward you a sample bottle by Parcel Post.

LOOSE BURLEY AVERAGE LAST YEAR.

(Western Tobacco Journal.) The general opinion prevails among the warehousemen of the Kentucky Burley markets that the farmers will realize as much this year for their tobacco as they did last year, provided, of course, they do not have a larger per cent of common and nondescript grades. The average on the Lexington market last year, which sold close to 50,000,000 pounds, was $12.01. There have been no crop sales this year to cut any figure that would be a criterion of prices for the 1914 crop.

Lorillard Company for the allied soldiers in France. A director of the Red Cross Society in New York has arranged for the forwarding of the donation to France.

BETTER NOT BITE.

The Canadian boosters again are using up considerable space on the patent sides of the county papers to induce American farmers to buy land. The American farmer who moves to Canada at this particular time is a mutt of the first magnitude. For he is liable to be conscripted before he has been in Canada six months and sent across the ocean to fight Germany—and he will be playing in big luck if he ever gets back to America, even by ocean freight or by international parcel post.—State Journal.

The Belgians Are Starving!

Yesterday these people were happy and prosperous; today they are nationless, homeless and foodless. War, which was forced upon them, has destroyed their property, from hut to palace, to say nothing of the colossal loss of life, most of whom were the producers. To add to their misfortunes the enemy who have occupied their land has demanded a war tax that will pauperize the most wealthy. These starving people have attracted the attention and sympathies of the American people, and I am sure that Mason county will do her part to relieve their suffering and to save their lives.

Facts—One barrel of flour will save a life; $5 is the wholesale price; $1.25 will buy a 49-pound sack and save a life three months; this flour is shipped to Belgium free.

Instructions—Give our send your subscriptions to any of the three newspapers or to any of the preachers, and they will see that it goes into the general fund. A list of the gifts will be published daily.

If you can not give money, perhaps you can give clothing. It is winter and many, being homeless, may freeze to death.

SCIENTIFIC PROOF OF IMMORTALITY.

Not any event of the last few days is attracting more interest or occasioning more general comment than the announcement of that eminent scientist, Sir Oliver Lodge, that he has talked with friends who have died; that he has demonstrated in a manner that science must accept, the continuance of conscious existence after death.

It is the conclusion arrived at by one who has the training and the ability required to render a correct verdict, for no man in the world stands higher in the estimation of the scientists of the world than Sir Oliver Lodge, a recognized authority in physics, electricity and psychology.

When the details of this trained observer's investigations are made public they will be read with the greatest interest throughout the world. If it is found that he has penetrated the wall which intervenes between the two spheres of existence; if he can prove conclusively to all mankind that beyond the change called death those who have passed are still in conscious existence, unalienated in spirit from those they associated with while here, the hopes and desires of all generations of men from the beginning will be realized, verified and confirmed.

For many, many years has Sir Oliver Lodge given his efforts to this work, and but a few years ago he described the situation of those who were still here and those who had passed over as that of workers in a tunnel being pushed through from both sides, and the blows struck to accomplish the work being indistinctly heard by those on each side of the intervening wall.

His latest announcement is that the opening is at last made, and that communication has been effected so definitely that science can not fail to pass approval of the work.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

SOME RED CROSS SEAL FIGURES.

Few people have any conception of the magnitude of the Red Cross Christmas seal campaign. Here are a few figures that will show what a gigantic movement this is. Already 115,000,000 seals have been printed, and practically that entire number distributed to agents in almost every state of the union. Probably 15,000,000 more will be needed. Advertising circulars, posters, cards, etc., to the number of several million have also been distributed. It is estimated that the army of paid and volunteer workers engaged in selling the seals number well over 100,000. The advertising and publicity donated to the campaign amount to several hundred thousand dollars. Every effort is being put forth to sell 100,000,000 seals, or about one for every man, woman and child in the United States.

YOU EAT $3 WORTH OF EGGS A YEAR.

American hens lay slightly over $300,000,000 worth of eggs a year. That is, every person eats on an average $3 worth.—Farm and Fireside.

OF THANKS.

River News

The gauge marks 3.7 at Maysville and falling.

From the amount of rainfall old river men do not look for enough water to ship loaded coal barges from the Great Kanawha or Pittsburgh district.

Fairly good rains have fallen through the Big Sandy, Great Kanawha and Upper Ohio valleys to the headwaters of the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers in the past 24 hours, which will make a small rise in the Ohio river.

21,976 FORDS SOLD IN SEPTEMBER

The Ford Motor Co., announces that in the month of September there were sold and delivered 21,976 Ford cars. This was a gain of 11,479 cars over September 1913. This is significant not only because it shows that the Ford production is rapidly being increased to meet the stupendous influx of orders, but also because it demonstrates that the Ford Motor Company is maintaining the 300,000 car-schedule necessary to give Ford purchasers between August 1st, 1914 and August 1st, 1915, a share of Ford profits.

We have just received a car-load of the new 1915 models, and can give you immediate delivery. There's nothing to gain by waiting, so order now and enjoy your car this fall and winter.
